

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Prince William County Supervisor Jeanine Lawson and Fairfax County Supervisor Pat Herrity Host Panhandling in Northern Virginia Virtual Town Hall

In their dedication to address pressing concerns within the community, Prince William Supervisor Jeanine Lawson and Fairfax County Supervisor Pat Herrity are pleased to extend an invitation to a virtual town hall event centered around the escalating issue of panhandling in Northern Virginia.

Panhandling has prompted community leaders from Fairfax County and Prince William to come together to explore viable solutions. The virtual town hall will provide a platform for an open dialogue among residents aiming to tackle this multifaceted issue with a shared approach.

"Panhandling impacts our community on multiple levels, and addressing it requires collective effort. This town hall presents an opportunity for us to come together, learn about available resources, and collaborate on finding effective solutions," Supervisor Lawson stated.

With a strong commitment to community well-being, Supervisor Lawson is actively engaged in finding innovative ways to tackle tough issues and enhance the quality of life for all PWC residents.

The event will include an interactive session where residents are encouraged to share their valuable perspectives, ideas, and feedback. The ultimate goal is to forge a path towards a safer and more supportive Northern Virginia.

Event Details:

Date: August 17th

Time: 7:00 PM - 8:30 PM

Topic: "What Should Northern Virginia Be Doing About Panhandling"

Hosts: Prince William Supervisor Jeanine Lawson and Fairfax County Supervisor Pat Herrity

Format: Virtual Town Hall

Location: Channel 16 (Fairfax TV) (with streaming on Facebook Live)

Residents interested in participating in this crucial conversation can tune in to the live broadcast on Channel 16 or join the streaming on Facebook Live. Questions and feedback can be submitted by calling 703-324-1114, emailing inquiries to springfieldbos@fairfaxcounty.gov, or engaging through comments on the Facebook Live stream.

For further information, please contact:

Erica Tredinnick

Office of Supervisor Jeanine Lawson – Brentsville

703-792-6190